

Call for Paper in English

Iranian Journal of Geophysics (IJG) is a specialized journal published by the Iranian Geophysical Society. As a science–research journal, IJG is published in four issues each year. IJG aims to introduce, promote and advance all activities, including education, research and innovation, in geophysics and relevant sciences. Further, IJG provides the link between experts in Earth Science in general and geophysicists in particular. To reach international audience, IJG intends to publish one additional issue annually dedicated to articles in English. We hereby declare our readiness to receive your papers in English. We are enthusiastically looking forward to receiving your contributions in the form of scientific papers and review articles as well as your help in the review process and constructive criticism and suggestions to raise the profile of IJG within international community. The papers can be submitted by email to:
